FAVORING PATTISON.

REPUBLICAN BUSINESS MEN OF PHILADEL-PHIA WILL VOTE FOR HIM.

An Independent Movement Probable Ex-Senator Wallace Declares He Will Give Hearty Support to the Ticket.

The Philadelphia Ledger contains the following:

A number of prominent Republican business men have announced their Intention to vote for the election of ex-Governor Pattison, and to do all they can to induce others of their own political faith to do likewise. Their is no organized movement to obtain supporters for the Democratic nominees from the ranks of the opposite party, but if the number of those who have declared for the ex-governor shall increase.

party, but if the number of those who have declared for the ex-governor shall increase it will likely result in independent Republican organization that will be unpleasant for the Republicans to contemplate.

The first general intimation that the work of the Republican convention was unsatisfactory to any class of business men was made on the floor of the Commercial Exchange shortly after the nomination of Delamater, and when the Democratic convention nominated Pattison staunch Revention nominated Pattison staunch Revention nominated Pattison staunch Re cate the election of the ex-governor. The reasons they gave for this change were that Hastings was the choice of the Repub-licans of the state; Delamater was forced on the ticket by Quay, and that the Demo-crats had named a man who had creditably filled the office for which he was a candi-

John D. Collins, a provision broker, at 121 North Front street, said he was a Republican and would vote for Pattison.
"There is too much Quay about the nomination to suit me," he said, "and I can't endorse him by voting for Delamater. Pat-tison made a good governor, and he is deserving of the confidence of the people of this state in the matter of re-election."
J. B. Canby, of Warr & Canby, 26 North

J. B. Canby, of Warr & Canby, 26 North Delaware avenue, ex-president of the Commercial Exchange, and a present director, said he would not vote for Delamater. "It is rather early to say how I shall vote. I feel like kicking, but whether I shall kick hard enough to vote for Pattison when the time comes I don't know. The Republican nominations have given a great deal of dissatisfaction down at the exchange. Republicans whom I thought nothing would drive to voting against the party are open in their asser-tions that they will vote for Pattison. I never saw anything like it."

Finley Acker, wholesale and retail gro-cer, at 123 North Eighth street, said: "Yes, I am going to support Pattison. I have always been a Republican and belonged to the Young Republicans, but when the con-vention obeyed the orders of Senator Quay and ignored the wishes of the Republicar of the state, I resigned from the club, and amounced that I would vote and do all I can for Pattison. If the convention had only nominated the ticket indicated by Quay would be bad enough, but to enfogize him in the plat-form when he had remained silent con-cerning the most serious charges affecting his character was to much for me. The Republican party is rapidly drifting towards a centralization of power, and that power, it looks to me, is held by one man-Quay." Mr. Acker said his brother, A Lincoln Acker, and another male relative, both of whom are Republicans, have announced themselves for Pattison. William Brockie, president of the Mari-time Exchange, said he was going to vote for Pattison. He was a Republican, but the nominations of the Republican con-vention had too much Quayism in them, and he felt he would be advancing the cause of good government by voting for Pattison. Fully a dozen others who had been seen talked in the same manner, but preferred for business reasons that they should not be quoted. They unbesitatingly ex-pressed dissatisfaction with the Republican nominations and declared their intention to vote for Pattison for governor.

Independents Conferring. Washington Dispatch to Baltimore Sun

Several prominent Pennsylvania Repub ficans have been here in consultation others on the political condition of affairs. From these it is learned that the opposition to the nomination of Delamater governor is increasing rather than minishing. Whether the proposition diminishing. will materialize or not it is probably too soon to say, but there is strong talk of put ting up an independent Republican candi date for governor. If the men in the Re date for governor. If the men in the Re-publican party of Pennsylvania opposed to Quay and Delamater really wish to defeat the latter the best way of course is for them to put up another candidate, for a very large proportion of dissatisfied Republicans who would not vote for a Democrat would have no hesitation in testifying their displeasure by voting for an independent can-didate of their own party.

WALLACE FOR THE TICKET. The Ex-Senator Says All Democrats Will Support It-He Will Stump

From the Harrisburg Patriot. Hon. William A. Wallace, who sailed on the steamer Majestic for Europe, was seen at the Gilsey house in New York city by a staff correspondent of the Patriot just be-fore he went aboard the vessel. On being asked about the prospects of the Demo-cratic state ticket in Pennsylvania Mr. Wallace said that the outlook, in his opinion, was favorable to the election of the

"I shall be absent from the country until the latter part of August or 1st of September," said he, "and on my return will do my part toward the success of the ticket. My friends will not be backward in giving it their support." To the question whether he was entirely satisfied with the platform adopted by the Pennsylvania Democratic convention, Mr. Wallace responded: " regard it as an excellent deliverance though I had hoped that the convention deliverance. would adopt a resolution declaring for a constitutional convention to re-move the marked ballot provision from the fundamental law of the state, as I do not see how a secret ballot can be had so long as election officers are permitted to make the ballots. A prospective educa-tional qualification of the voter, not dis-qualifying any who are now voters, or who might become voters for five years after the adoption of such a qualification, would also be a wholesome provision. In 1888 thousands of foreigners who came here without any intention of becoming permanent residents, and who could neither read nor write, were driven to the polls like so many voting cattle by their employers: and this sort of thing is constantly grow ing. This is especially the case in the coal and coke regions. administration has discriminated against administration has discriminated against our race; the same power has attempted to degrade our prominent men by putting them in menial positions, and the attitude of white Republican leaders towards our race is such as to indicate that they no longer desire our support, except as servile tools, and, if they voice the sentiment of their white Republican brothren, then we are not further desired as a Republican factor in the politics of the state."

ASSAULTED AN OFFICER.

A Contesville Man Feels the Force of Policeman King's Billy.
This morning the mayor had two customers. One of these was Thomas Kelly, a big Englishman, who says his home is in Coatesville. He came to town yesterday and got very drunk. In the evening he went out East Orange street, and attempted to walk across the new asphalt pavement which is being laid in front of the Presbyterian church. The watchman remonstrated with him, and Officer King, who is sexton of the church, came along in citizen's clothes. He told Kelly to keep quiet, but that only made the son of Great Britain worse. He called the officer all kinds of foul names, and finally struck him with his fist. King replied by tapping him on the head with a billy, which had a very good effect. He was landed in the lockup, and was so drunk that he refused to give his name. Before the mayor this morning Kelly appeared with a cut head, which he did not mind a great deal. He said that he supposed he had behaved badly, as he usually did when drinking, but he was sorry for what he had done. He thought the officer had done right in hitting him. He promised to leave town if the mayor would leave him go, and he was discharged upon the payment of costs.

Lewis W. Hotch, an old soldier, was the other unfortunate. He was found lying asleep on a door step on North Lime street, by Officer George Snyder, and was discharged by the mayor.

MT. JOY'S ORPHAN SCHOOL. The Commission Adheres to its Former

Action and Closes the School. The state commission of soldiers' orphans schools met in Harrisburg on Thursday and the principal topic of discussion was the closing of the Mt. Joy school. After the commission decided to close this school its friends endeavored to have the commission reconsider its determination. Peti tions numerously signed were forwarded to the commission. A committee of Mt. Joy's citizens attended the meeting at Harrisburg. This committe were: Dr. Ziegler, J. E. Longenecker, Martin Bowman, S. R. Snyder, D. B. Hoffer, M. Drabenstadt, John W. Eshleman, Chief Burgess Stager, P. A. Pyle, L. Redsecker, L. D. Gallagher and Joseph Detweiler. The G. A. R. posts were represented by ptain Denues and A. U. Lesher, president of the Mt. Joy Sixteeners' association, headed by the delegation of that body, Speeches were made by Mr. Hensel, repreenting Mt Joy citizens, Captain Denues, and Mr. Lesher, all of whom pleaded elo quently for the re-opening of the school on the ground that its location was central, the surrounding country beautiful, the atmosphere pure, the past record of the school good, and because the people of the town of Mt. Joy took a great interest in the institution.

The commission decided to adhere to the action agreed upon some time ago-to close the schools. Mt. Joy would have been one of the last schools to be closed, but ex-Senator Wright some time ago notified the commission that he would not lease the Mt. Joy school building to it, and on the strength of Wright's declaration the commission made arrangements to transfer the Mt. Joy pupils, and those arrangements could not now be changed.

THAT NOTORIOUS BREIDENBACH WOMAN MARRIES HUGH M'GEERAN.

Her Husband Causes Her Arrest Because She Takes a Carriage Ride With a Young Man on the Wedding Night.

On Thursday evening a wedding under very peculiar circumstances and which d disastronsly, took place in this city. The bride was Nora Breidenbach, very tough female who has served several terms in jail and has recently been spending some time at the almshouse. Of late she has been living in the Seventh ward. The groom was Hugh McGeehan, who is a moulder by trade. On Thursday the couple got together and both began drinking. About nine o'clock in the evening they went to the office of Alderman Halbach, where they were united in marriage by the magistrate. The groom told his wife that he was the owner of a livery stable and he would go and get one of his horses to take her a ride. He went to the livery of Ed. Hartman, in the rear of the Grape hotel, where he hired a horse and buggy, and started out for a drive with his wife. They were gone some time and when they returned to Nora's stopping place McGeehan said he would go to his stable and collect from the hostler, in charge, what money he had taken in. While her husband was gone a young man with whom Nora is said to be far more deeply in love than she is with Hughey, came along and saw her in the buggy, She invited him to get in and take a ride. That was a snap for him to get a cheap ride, so he quickly took a seat by the side of the blooming bride. They drove away and remained out for some time. When they returned they took the horse to the stable. The bride there found out that McGeehan had told her an awful lie, and that he had no connection whatever with the stable.

When McGeehan found that Nora had gone off with another fellow he went to Alderman Barr's to make complaint against them for stealing the team. The alderman said that he could not make complaint against his own wife on a charge of the kind. McGeehan said he did not remember being married and he would not o.vn the woman as his wife. The alderman then took the complaint and Nora was arrested by Constable Crawford and locked up. The young fellow that was with her took to his heels and succeeded in getting away from the officer, but he may be captured yet.

At Alderman Barr's office McGeehan denied positively that he had procured a marriage license. The fact is that he lied-Deputy Clerk of Orphans' Court Samue Kauffman was at work in the office shortly before 9 o'clock last evening. McGechan came in and took out a license to marry the fair Nora. He answered all the questions asked him properly and signed the application. He gave the bride's name as Maria Breidenbach, but said he was not certain that the first name was right; he said he would correct it at the alderman's office.' Alderman Halbach says that the couple did not appear to be drunk when they came to his office. There seems to be little love between the man and wife. In her cell at the station house this morning Nora showed her marriage certificate. She said that Hughey had offered to give her $25 for it, but she refused to give it up. She said her husband has an idea that if he secures the certificate and destroys it the marriage will not be binding. She says she knows better than that, but she is willing to let McGeehan go his way, as she cares nothing about him, and she likes the young fellow who went away with her afterwards much better.

Nora came here several years ago from Reading, after getting into trouble with a young man there, whose parents compelled her to flee. She is a rather good looking woman, but one of the most worthless in the city.

When McGeehan came to settle with Alderman Halbach for performing the marriage ceremony he gave him a check for $3 upon the bank of Reed, McGrann & The check was worthless, as Mc Geehan never had a cent in the bank

Kicked By a Mustaug.

Jacob Leman was at the Eastern Market hotel on Thursday evening. Wm. Woerner is the owner of a mustang kept in the stable in the rear of this hotel. Leman was slightly under the influence of liquor and said he was going to the stable to see what kind of a vicious horse he has, and he was told to keep away from the animal or he would get hurt. He said he would take care of himself and went into the stall. He did not remain there for more than a minute, for he was kicked by the mustang and hurled several feet. His injuries consist of a badly bruised leg. He was taken to his home, No.240 West Vine street, where his injuries were attended by Dr. D. R. McCormick. He will be confined to the house for several days.

A Strike Easily Settled.

Yesterday a number of bunchers, rollers and strippers employed in the cigar factory of Simon Reist, on Prince street, concluded that they would strike for higher wages. That settled the strike and the strikers resumed and Most Ele NCASTER, PA., FRIDAY, JULY 11, 1890.

THE NEW SILVER BILL ACCEPTED. It Is Adopted in the Senate By a Strict Republican Vote After Protests By Silver Advocates.

Republican Vote After Protests
By Silver Advocates.
Reed's compromise silver bill went through the Senate on Thursday, and went through on strictly party lines, just as Reed had designed that it should go. The Republican free-coinage advocates were satisfied with it because Reed was not content to yield more, and the Democratic free-coinage senators were dissatisfied with it because they believed that more could have been obtained if the Republican silver men had not yielded their convictions under the party lash. Hence the purely party division on the question
When the consideration of the conference report on the bill was resumed Mri
Morgan took the floor in opposition to it.
He did not know but that the effect of the vote, to be taken (if it should result in the adoption of the conference bill) would not be really more fatal to the prospect of silver coinage in the future than the act of 1873. The legislation of 1873 had been (he said) an act of cold-blooded assassination of the silver dollar. It had been presided over by the same senator whose "the Italian" hand was to be seen in the conference bill, a bill which was a whose "fine Italian" hand was to be seen in the conference bill, a bill which was a total departure from the action of both the House and Senate, and was as essentially new as if it had been a novel written by the senator from Ohio within the last five days.

five days.

Mr. Morgan went on to speak of legislation on all important matters being now entirely controlled by conference committees—committees of arbitration—whose proceedings were secret, so that if such a committee were bribed to the extent of a hundred million dollars no senator would be permitted to find it out.

Mr. Allison remarked that there was no necessary secrets about conference com-

Mr. Allison remarked that there was no necessary secreey about conference committees. They were public committees.

Mr. Morgan replied to that remark by saying that in this very discussion Mr. Sherman had declined to answer a question as to proceedings in the conference committee on the ground that such proceedings were secret.

Mr. Sherman said he had never denied any information as to what took place in

Mr. Sherman said he had hever defied any information as to what took place in conference. He had been asked what particular conferree had offered a particular proposition, and he had felt that he was not at liberty to answer such a question. If he had been asked who voted for it he should have stated the exact fact, but as to disclosing conversation in committee, that would be a departure not only from parliamentary propriety, but from gentle-parliamentary propriety, but from gentle-manly propriety.

Mr. Morgan spoke for three hours and closed with an appeal to senators not to allow the senator from Ohio (Mr. Sher-man) to thrust his stiletto again into silver. Mr. Hall also argued against the confer-ence bill, suggesting that it was only a variation of the Farmers' Alliance ware-house bill, and that the only difference was that in the case of silver it was to be bought that in the case of silver it was to be bought outright.

Mr Plumb said that in the particulars which he regarded as essential the bill was comparatively unobjectionable, supposing always that a compromise had to be made always that a compromise had to be made. He had been surprised to find that, in regard to the free coinage of silver, the Senate had been more advanced than the House. If this bill should become a law his own belief was that, so easily and nicely would it work, so helpful would it be to all people of the United States, so wisely would it commend itself to the good judgment of the prople, that the next step would be for free coinage, and a short step, too, taken free coinage, and a short step, too, taken with the practical concurrence of the American people. He should vote for the conference bill, regretting that it was no better, immensely glad that it was no worse.

Mr. Vauce-It is admitted that the bill is not what it ought to be. Common sense would dictate then, that we try to make it what it ought to be. We have made but one effort to make it what it ought to be, and being met with a rebuff at the other end of the capitol, we immediately submit and make no further effort. We proposed a bill for the benefit of the people. We are now about to pass one for the benefit of the miners and dealers in silver bullion. That is the difference between the two bills should stand up and take his medicine cheerfully. After listening to one senator from Oregon (Mr. Dolph), who found in the bill a gold standard, and to the other senator from Oregon (Mr. Mitchell), who found in it free coinage, and to the senator from Kansas (Mr. Plumb), who was satistied that it was a free coinage bill, and to the senator from Colorado (Mr.Teller), who was not satisfied with it precisely, he (Mr Blair) thought he would vote for it; but he gave notice that under no circumstances would be, here or elsewhere, give a single reason for so doing. [Laughter, and : reason for so doing. [Laughter, and complimentary remark from Mr. Edmunds that that was the best speech which had been made on the subject.]

A Lost Boy.

Hiram Kendig, who lives at 710 East Orange street, has a little son, whose age is between 5 and 6 years. About 10 o'clock yesterday morning the little fellow wandered away from home, leaving without hat or shoes. When he was missed there was great excitement in the family, and search for him was made all about the house and over the entire neighborhood-Towards evening word was left at the station house concerning the missing boy, and the police officers were instructed to be on the lookout for him. Between 9 and 10 o'clock the little fellow was found by a horse-car driver who turned him over to ex-Police Officer Henry Shertz. The latter took him to the station house. He could tell his name, but did not know where he lived. Officer George Snyder took him home. There was great joy in the family at the return of the little fellow, who said he had been away looking at the cars.

THE BULL RING CHURPTAIN ALLOWS IT TO

The Boodle Exchanged For the Paper Used At a Primary Election - A Law Suit May Reveal Dirty Linen.

Levi Seusenig, a few day ago, allowed a note for $3,000 to go to protest at the Christiana National bank and the bank promptly brought suit on it to recover the mount from Sensenig. On the face of the suit it is an ordinary action of assumpsit to recover a debi, but under the surface there s an interesting history. Sensenig will endeavor to get before the public in some shape the reasons he allowed the note to go to protest, but he will not be able legally to do so. If he signed his name to the note, and that fact he does not dispute, judgment will be entered against him for the face value of the note and interest to date of trial. According to Levi Sensenig's side of the of the Christiana bank, having been renewed with regularity every ninety days for the past few years. The history of the note is the history of the Republican factions in Lancaster county. As everybody knows, Levi is a political boss who does his work not for the glory that there is in success but for cold cash. Candidates for office for many years were compelled to pay tribute to him to have a wining chance. When Steve Grissinger was a candidate for county treasurer Levi thought $3,000 was a fair compensation for him for expenses in getting him on the Bull Ring ticket. Of course all of this money did not get into Levi s pocket. A portion went to the township bosses and ward heelers. Levi claims that he was authorized by Grissinger's friends to expend that amount of money inlhis behalf, and he did so. After the primary Levi asked to be reimbursed, and he was put off from time to time with promises which were never fulfilled.

Before the late primary last May, Levi again demanded that this $3,000 be paid him and threatened to jump the traces and turn in for Sam Martin if it was not forthcoming. It was not deemed expedient to lose Levi's support and a compromise was effected by which it was agreed to pay him $2,000 in case Hiestand was elected treasand Levi turned in for him.

This agreement was reduced to writing and placed in the hands of a mutual friend. Levi kicked and said if he could not hold this paper the compromise was off. The parties interested did not trust Levi and declined to allow him to have it.

Then followed the revolt of Levi which led to the division of the Republican party into numerous factions at the last primary The breach has widened between Levi and his farmer friends since then and Levi said he would show up the Grissinger deal the first time he got a chance. He thought he saw his opportunity when this $3,000 note became due by allowing it to go to protest. Levi has also severed his connection with the Fulton bank and now keeps his leposits at the People's bank. He made the change about ten days ago. The representatives of the Christiana bank will make every effort to prevent hese side issues from being dragged into this suit. They claim that it was a business note, properly endorsed by a responsible party, and, as such, discounted.

Levi's counsel will endeavor to show forth the facts as narrated above, with many others, and if they succeed in getof the case will make interesting reading, and show how corrupt Republican politics is, and how the voters are debauched a the annual primary elections.

The outcome of the suit will be watched with great interest by the politicians of the

Must Abute the Nulsance. The sixteenth annual session of the State Board of Health was held in Harrisburg on Thursday. The only local matter considered was the drainage at the Millers ville Normal school. The health board decided that the system of emptying the drainage into the run which connects with the Conestoga creek is a nuisance, as it contaminates the water and renders it unfit for use.

Dr. Lee, the secretary, was instructed to notify the Millersville school authorities that the nuisance must be abated, but did not give any suggestions us to where the drainage from the school shall be carried.

Herold Weather Forecasts, — Clear weather prevailed yesterday in the Mississippi Valley and everywhere cast to the Atlantic except in Florida. The influence of the "cool wave" in this section will not be entirely lost till Sunday, though the temperature meantime will increase. The Pakota storm centre will probably move to-day so far toward the north of east that its indraught will not continue to increase the flow of heated air from the east that its indraught will not continue to increase the flow of heated air from the Gulf states, and hence the Western "hot wave" is not likely to equal that of Tuesday last, either in extent or intensity. Temperature fell slightly in the United States yesterday except in the Southwest and South Dakota; the chief the Southwest and South Dakota; the chief minimum reported (except 25 degrees at Mount Washingtot) was 46 degrees at Alpena, Mich.; the chief maxima were 85 at Fort Sill, I. T., Huron and Fort Sully, S. D., and 102 at Rio Grande city. In the Middle states and New England fair weather will prevail, with light northerly to westerly winds and slight thermal changes, winds shifting to easterly and southerly in the southwestern and wostern parts of this section.
